

Leanne Binder

LEANNE BINDER MUSIC

Leanne Binder's voice was built twice. The first time in the halls of a conservatory, the second in the wreckage left behind. Born and raised in Youngstown, Ohio, she entered a college-level opera program at just twelve, before stepping away from classical training to forge her own sound through soul, blues, and rock.

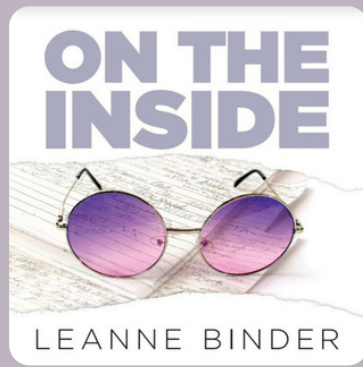

Her journey has taken her from smoky Midwestern bars to festival stages across the U.S. and Europe, including The Cavern Club in Liverpool, the Great British Rhythm & Blues Festival, and the New Orleans Jazz & Heritage Festival, where she's shared stages with Joe Bonamassa, Tommy Castro, Shemekia Copeland, and The Texas Headhunters.

After years of detours, reinvention, and rebuilding, Binder has come into her strongest form yet. Her latest EP, I Got Something to Say, produced by Grammy winner Lee J. Turner, marks both a return to roots and a declaration of self — where Rust Belt blues meets rock and soul.

What They're Saying...

"Leanne demonstrates the power of Janis Joplin in her vocals and the stylings of Bonnie Raitt in her presentation. But make no mistake Leanne is delivering a new voice of the blues that is uniquely her own!"
-Blues Blast Magazine

"I'M IN LOVE! I'M IN LOVE. THE GREATEST BLUES VOICE I'VE EVER HEARD!"
-Owen Money, BBC RADIO Wales

"Rock, Blues, Ballads, or Belters...Leanne will make them soulful as hell. Fact, this gal can flat out sing!"
-Cornel Bogdan, Tangled Up in Blues/WYFM Cumulus Media

"Leanne's dedication and passion go into every detail, making sure what she's giving the world is top-notch. Her voice fills every room and every recording with energy!"
-Lee J. Turner, Grammy Award-winning producer & keyboardist for Darius Rucker
